

Estimate Details

Customer is landlord. Building is multi level condo. Customer previously pulled toilet and replaced wax ring, noted and documented area around the floor flange was dry. Customer showed us photos of a PVC floor flange, which he states is the current existing floor plan. When we went downstairs, to unit 501, and looked up into the ceiling, through very limited access next to a ceiling vent for the bathroom fan, it was noted that the drain line for the toilet in unit 601 is a LED bend pipe. There was heavy corrosion and calcification on the exterior of the LED band. The recommended repair would be to replace the LED bend and the floor flange up through the subfloor structure of the building. At this point, job will be redressed on Monday at the earliest, as we may need access to commercial level supplies for materials and, we need clarification insofar as who has the authority to give us offer is a shin to proceed and who will pay for it (ie is this a building issue or an owner issue)
