

READY TO BREAK OUT

The rock band Out From Underneath is about to blow up. One can sense the ticking talent bomb just talking with them – the simmering energy, the drive, the raw talent. Everyone around them says they're going to go big – it's just a matter of time.

"They are one of four or five local acts that can generate large ticket sales," said booking agent Ed Shaw. "It's a no brainer to book them. It's just BAM!, we're going to have a good night."

The band, which just got back from writing, recording and playing in LA in venues such as the Viper Room and Key Club, has filled venues throughout the Puget Sound area.

The band will be featured in an upcoming indie film with Out From Underneath (OFU) playing themselves.

The band agreed to write and perform the score for the film "Webcast," which is being produced by David De Lay of Grandpa's RV Productions.

OFU's sound is at once familiar and new. The band has been compared in music reviews to 311, Incubus, Audioslave and Sublime.

Their fan base is growing and recently expanded to include P-Diddy (Sean Combs) who, after hearing OFU's CD, invited the band to his personal party at the MTV Video Music Awards in Miami last August.

"We got to walk the white carpet," Love said. "It was pretty surreal."
